Frozen Food Factory Sustainability Audit

The Challenge

The client a large frozen food manufacturing and processing company based in Northern England required a full sustainability audit of their site. The purpose of this was to enable them to comply and identify issues and opportunities as part of their statutory reporting on carbon emissions. The client employed over 3,000 staff at the site.

The Solution

A full sustainability audit of the factory and wider site was undertaken, encompassing energy use, energy generation, waste disposal, waste production, transport, as well as staff behaviour and general awareness.

The Outcome

As well as assisting the client with their statutory reporting, the sustainability audit helped to highlight the client's better working practices so they could replicate this across other parts of the business. This included utilising their waste for an energy from waste programme on the site.

This involved generating and utilising their own energy from their waste products, which in turn would significantly reduce their running costs.
